HIGH-CLASS SHOOTING.

E. W. Ford Kills 98 Birds Out of 100 at Anatolian Club.

E. W. Ford was "high gun" yesterday afternoon at the weekly tournament at the Anatolian Gun Club. He killed 98 birds out of 100, which score gave him high average in the spoon event. Ford received a handsome silver spoon as a prize.

After breaking 29 birds in the spoon event, Ford got out of his next 15 and 19 out of the next 20. He smashed 14 out of 15 in each of the next two frames and finished with 19 down out of 20. Ford won many handsome prizes in Barnard last week at the registered tournament of the Anatolian club in the city, which was only one target behind the highest professional, Charles H. Newcomb, Pennsylvania state champion.

Frank H. Huseman, former professional, won first prize in class A of the spoon shoot. He broke 45 saucers out of 50, while M. D. Hogan got 40 "breaks" to his credit out of the same number. Miles Taylor, secretary of the club, was best in the C class. He got 21 down out of 25 in the third frame and finished with 19 down out of 20 in the fourth.

W. D. Delaney and E. V. Otis also did well in the singles, as each broke 33 targets out of 100, while W. T. Edmonds got 32.

Georgia Tech Wins Meet.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 20.—Georgia Tech won the ninth annual May day invitation track and field meet of the Birmingham Athletic Club here this afternoon in a walkaway, scoring seventy points. The Yellow Jackets had an easy time, the Birmingham Athletic Club team was their closest competitor, scoring forty-seven points. The Y. M. C. A. was third with thirteen and Mercer fourth with five points.

Mercer's only entry, Mangham, won the lone event that he entered, the mile run. Mangham of Tech won the individual honors, scoring eighteen points, while Strupper of Tech and Eugene of the Y. M. C. A. were tied for second place with fifteen points. Tech won a place in every event in which it had a contestant, while the athletic club, entered in all but one event also won a place on each. The meet was held under the regulations of the A. A. U. or the S. L. A. No records of the A. A. U. or the S. L. A. were broken.

GIRL IS ATTACKED AT HOME BY NEGRO.

Pearl Edwards, 13, Daughter of Policeman, Unnerved Despite Her Escape.

Attacked in her home, 1210 Potomac avenue southeast, yesterday afternoon by a negro, Pearl Edwards, the thirteen-year-old daughter of Lewis L. H. Edwards, desk sergeant at the first police station, was last night still unnerved from her experience. The negro is at large.

The girl had been left at home by her mother while the latter went to visit a sick friend. She was dressing her two-year-old sister shortly after 3 o'clock when she heard footsteps behind her. As she turned around to see who was approaching the negro was upon her. He asked for 10 cents. When told she had no money the man persisted in his demand. The girl started toward a telephone in the room, but the man intercepted her and threw her upon the floor. He placed a large rocking chair over her prone body, and then sat upon the chair. While seated in the chair the man drew a large knife from his pocket and threatened to kill her if she made an outcry.

Breaks Open Child's Bank.

A small bank on a sidewalk attracted the man's attention, and this he forced open, securing about 10 or 20 cents from it. About that time a younger child, who had been upstairs, started down. The intruder, it is believed, thought the footsteps indicated some known person was in the house, as he ran out of the back way and disappeared.

A brother of the girl entered the house a few minutes later and found the attack upon his sister and also of the robbery. He notified neighbors. Mrs. Edwards returned home later and found a black slouch hat, blue pants, blue shirt, rusty coat and black shoes with rubber soles.

Reports Macmillan Party Safe.

CLINTON, Iowa, May 20.—That the Macmillan-Crocker land expedition which left for the north three years ago is safe is indicated in a cablegram received today by Mrs. Jerome Le Allen of Maquoketa, Iowa, from her husband, a wireless expert with the party. The message was dated at Thorshavn, Faroe Islands, and said: "Get home July."

WEATHER.

Cloudy, Probable Showers Tonight or Tomorrow; Moderate Winds.

District of Columbia, partly cloudy today, showers at night or tomorrow; moderate northeast to east winds.

Maryland, partly cloudy today; showers in extreme west portion; tomorrow, showers; moderate northeast to east winds.

Virginia, partly cloudy today; tomorrow, showers; moderate northeast to east winds.

West Virginia, showers today and probably tomorrow; warmer Sunday.

The extreme western disturbance of the last few days is now over southeastern Colorado, with increased intensity, and quite general rains have fallen over the eastern plateau and the states and the Maine and middle Mississippi valleys. East of the Mississippi river pressure is generally high, although there were local rains from the lower lake region eastward.

It is warmer in the south and extreme west, but elsewhere temperatures remain somewhat below the seasonal average, as a rule, with a decided fall in Colorado and New Mexico.

The eastward movement of the Colorado disturbance will result in quite general showers today from the upper Los Angeles valley to the east.

It will be somewhat warmer today, except in the latter district, and extending to the Atlantic coast.

In the lake region, and cooler tomorrow in the upper lake region, the lower Ohio valley, Tennessee and the east gulf states.

Storm warnings are displayed on the Texas coast.

The winds along the north Atlantic coast and middle Atlantic coast will be moderate southwest to north; on the south Atlantic coast, moderate mostly northeast and east; on the east gulf coast, moderate east, except southeast.
